It is satisfactory to learn, on the authority of the Shanshai Conrier, that the Chinese Government, lias, on the invitation of M BRENIER DE MONTMORAND, the French Minister at Peking, decided to participate in the Paris Exhibition of 1878. Mr. HART, the Inspector-General of Customs, will, as in the case of the Vienna Exhibition of 1873 and the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphis, by asked to make the necessary collections and contributions; and there is, consequently, every reason to believe that China will be worthily represented in the great show at Paris. It is a good and healthy sign to find the Government of Peking willing to so far break through its prejudices as to join in an exhibition in a foreign and distant country. In all probability, the example of Japan has not been lost upon it. It is sagacious enough to know that hese exhibitions act as gigantic advertisements. by means of which the productions of the various countries represented are made universally knowe, and a demand for them often created thereby. And it would be mortifying to the Chinese Government, in spite of its assumed contampt for foreigners, if a large portion of the money they have hitberto spent in China should be diverted to Jupan. Much as the Chinese officials hate foreigners and foreign institutions, they are by no means blind to the advantages that spring from

There is thus, it will be seen, a good prospect of China being always to the fore in these great industrial shows, and it is peculiarly fitting that she out entirely successful, and gave great and should be. Her productions and manufactures are varied, important, and interesting. Her foreign trade is likely to go on extending, and it may be promoted considerably by these exhibits. The people of Europe will, undience. There was a good house. Everything that tends, in however small a degree, to rub off their prejudices and diffuso a more accurate knowledge of Western civilisation and inventions among youngsters yesterday. I am sure no one could the Chinese must be regarded with satisfaction, as agents in the great work of opening sup their country and breaking up the old exclusive system. It is to bo ho, d that the time will come some day-though it may be distant now-when an international industrial exhibition may be held at Poking or one of the other great cities of China.

WHETHER or no the enemies of Tino, the Futai of Fobkien, really sought to get him removed from his present office, or whether his application for leave to resign was prompted by a genuine desire to be relieved from the burdens and responsibilities of office, it is certain that the Chinese Government has decided to keep a good servant. The probability is, however, that the Futai of competency, of No. 13,887, be suspended for was perfectly in earnest in asking leave to resign his appointment, for it is well known | 24th day of November, 1876. that he has for some time been suffering from ill-health. It would appear from his case and that of the late Grand Secretary, WEN-SIANG, who was never allowed to rotire from office altogether, that a high Chinese official cannot readily retire into private life. The real fact probably is, however, that it is considered a tribute to the matter. At the same time it may be of their worth to retain them in office appagroutly against their will, thus making it appear to the people how highly they are iron vessels true and proper bearings to find out valued, and how indispensable their services pre considered. THE adoption recently by the Chinese Governiment of new salvago regulations would seem to have had some effect upon the treatment by the poonle on the coast of shipwrecked mariners. At all events two instances, have recently been recorded of humane and kindly treatment being extended lowards distressed mariners. The Peking Gazette of the 19th ultimo contains a roport, according to which a number of Loochooans, who had been driven by stress of weather on the coast of Fohkien, were properly cared for while in Foochow, and eventually sent back, with a month's provisions, in their own craft, after it had been examined and found staunch enough for the voyage. Since then a party of eight shipwrocked Coreans have Leen brought into Foodbow, where they were kindly acceived by the Authorities, and despatched to the North in one of the Chinese gunboats, with the intention of forwarding them on to their own country. It is gratifying to find that the Chinese Authorities are waking up to their duty to others. They have doubtless been induced to pay attention to these waifs from prudential reasons, and have been, perhaps, partly shamed into such a display of humanity. But whatever the cause, it is matter for congratulation among Western nations, that a Government whichwas so recently uttorly indifferent to the fate of poor people wreeked upon its coast, and instead of granting them assistance, has so far conformed to the usages of civilised Powers as to proffer help to the distressed mariners of other bations thrown upon its

BREACH OF THE CHINESS PASSENGER ACT. H. G. Thomastt, Esc., B.N., Harbour Muster and Emigration Officer, summoned Mr. Prodorick Wobb. Moster of the British steamship Cheang Hock Kian, for leaving the port of Amoy on the 21st November, with a number of passengers, without having previously obtained a certificate and emigration paper, in contravention of the Chinese Passenger Act 1855 and Ordinance 5 of 874 and 5 of 1876. Captain Thomsett, as Emigration Officer, sat reside the Magistrate. Mr. Sharp, the crown solicitor, appeared to prosecute, and Mr. Wotton to defend. Mr. Sburp pointed out the clause of the Emigration Act which the defendant had contravened, and urged the necessity of substantial punishment if the contravention were proved. Mr. Wotton admitted the charge, but arged in mitigation that at the last moment, after being sixteen days in Amoy, the defendant had been ordered to make certain ventilators to his ship. The defendant left and bad done here what the Oment had ordered .. Captain Thomsett said that what had been done here had been done by his orders without reference to the consular orders.

Mr. Sharp, in opening the case, said it was hardly necessary for him to put witnesses into the defendant. He would simply call the magistrate's attention to the provisions of the Chinese Passenger's Act and state that, as set forth in the complaint, the defendant left Amoy on the 21st instant without a certificate from H.M. Consul and oven without his emigration pap r. Arriving in this port, where he should have shown them, the fact that he did not possess them for the production of the documents. He would draw the magietrate's attention to the fact that the prepairators of offences of this nature, in accordance with the provisions of that Act were table, not only to a heavy fine of £100, but to the orfeiture of the ship. The case was serious; and it was one in which the defendant could not

Mr. Sharp attempted to reply, but Mr. Wotton objected, and said he no right to a reply. Mr. Sharp said that had Mr. Wotton confined himself to the points of mitigation there would be in necessity for a reply, but he had put forward contain statements which required contradiction. ## HORRIBLE ORUELTIES BY MONTENEGRINS

It is the way in which the Servians observe the suspension of hostilities, taking Advantage of it to do deeds of downright violence. The writer also states that in the hospital at Podgoritza he has just seen 40 Turkish soldiera who were taken prisoners by the Montenegrins. and had their care, noses, and lipaout off by these charitable Christians. . After this process they were stripped of their clothes and flogged back to the Turkish camp. The writer concludes by stating that the fact of Russia baving gone to war with Turkey when she pretends to be at peace has kindle a desperate entimisar in the Tarkish troops.

AFFAIRS IN PERU. A letter from Lime in the Borsenzeitung says that the state of political affairs in Peru is again becoming very unsettled. Noisy meetings have been held by the members of the various parties; and after one of these, which took place in the cathedral square, the mob became so excited that it proceeded with ories of "To the lantern! Give up the eight millions you have stolen!" to the house of the ex-President Manuel Prado. Fortunately the iron railing in the court-yard resisted the first efforte of the rioters, and President Frado, who came up just in time, succeeded, with the sesistance of the troops, in saving his predecessor from the fate inflicted on the brothers Gutierrez in July, 1872. In his message to LIVERPOOL AND LONDON AND GLOB the Congress, the new President made some interesting remarks on the state of the Peruvian finances. In the year 1868, he said, when he was driven from office by Colonel Balts, the State debt amounted to about 40,000;000 soles; and if the financial schemes. then in operation had been honestly carried out, the debt would have disappeared in 1871 by which time all. Pern's creditors would have been paid in full. This, however, was far from being the case, as is shown by the fact that the State debt is now 200,000,000 soles, and that the guano deposits, which might otherwise boot so much service in promoting the intellectual and material development of the country are mortgaged for the purpose of discharging the obligations of the debt. "There is no nation," he added " which is provided by nature with greater means for developing its industry and prosperity than ours; yet, instead of being great and powerful ne we might be, we are ernshed under a load o debt," The first Cabinet appointed by the dew President was a confliction one, under the reactionist ex-Minister Dr. Arenas; but the latter has since resigned, and been encoceded by Dr

of President Balts.

The question of extradition has come under debate in the International and Municipal Law Section of the Social Science Congress; and the discussion very faithfully reflected the change which has taken place in public opinion upon this question. Two of the speakers, indeed, may be said to have represented the reaction from the former eraggerated tenderness for the rights. of the other extreme of affording them insufficient protection. The question was opened by Mr. Westlake, Q C., who read a paper on the limits within which the two questions whether political offences should be excluded from extradition arrangements, and whether they should be subject to the condition that the person carrendered should only be tried for the offence for which the surrender was made. On the first in came to a conclusion in the affirmative, and on the second in the negative. He contended that if the trial of the offender were limited to offences within the extradition treaties there would be ample security against the apprehension that he might be tried for a political offence. In the discussion which occurre ! later on two speakers contended that political oriminals ought not to be excluded from extradition treaties; but the sense of the meeting, is declared by the president, Mr. Herschell, Q.C., expressed itself in the sound conclusion that, "however desirable, it might be to surrender certain political offenders, it would be almost impossible to find a definition which might not endanger the liberty of those who all would agree ought not to be given up. Another and very important branch of the subject was opened in a paper read by Mi Dickinson, in which it was argued that "extradition should cease to be a matter of treaty, and Insurances, such RETURN being payable on the that a general municipal law would enable us to give up offenders for every offence for which it was deemed right that such provisions should be made." Discussion may possibly elicit some at present unsuspected objections to this proposal, but ou two grounds, at any rate, commends itself to the judgment. It would put an end once for all to all international difficulties of the "Winslow" sort, and it strikes at the radically false theory of treating the surrender of criminals on the "reciprocity principle," Surely it is to the advantage of one country not to harbour the oriminals of another, even though that other should refuse to surrender to her her

DISCOVERY OF AN EXTRAORDINARY OAVERN IN FRANCE

The discovery of an enormous grotto at Burgus, in Spain, has been followed by the accidental discovery of another in France which will be still more interesting to anthropologists. As some workmen were engaged in the extraction of Jura limestone from a quarry close to Belfort, having sprung a mine for the purpose, they remarked a small hole that seemed to belong to some cavity. Having widened this opening with their pickaxes and then wentured inside with for sirloin steek and such things for over lamps, they found themselves in a vast cavers, the floor of which was about 6ft. lower than the orifice. Their surprise was increased on seeing heaps of human skulls and bones lying about, as if this place had once been a vast charnel-house. No door, no opening whatever, but that which they themselves had made in a wall of unbroken rock, could be discovered. The alarm was
